

Chapter 1: Introduction

Section 1.1

This is the main content of the document. The header above and footer below should be detected by DLA and popped from the output if they are at the correct page-edge positions.

Additional paragraph to provide enough content for layout analysis. The parser should correctly identify the document structure and remove decorative elements like page numbers and running headers.